IUS FIELD BIOLOGY
WANT TO DO MORE?
WITH YOUR SUPPORT, IU CAN CONTINUE TO SHAPE THE WORLD

What

Since 1996, Field Biology students have been traveling abroad annually for an exceptional applied learning experience. Spanning four continents in the last 20 years, these students enjoy the opportunity to see classroom learning come to life while they encounter new cultures and ecosystems. Through the years, students have described this experience as life-changing and among the most valuable of their college career. As we face an increasingly global society, it is critical to continue to provide these opportunities for our students to expand their worldview. For that very reason, Indiana University has identified “Creating the Next Generation of Global Leaders” as one of the key purposes of its For All Bicentennial Campaign.
Why

IU Southeast needs your support more than ever to sustain this amazing study-abroad program. We do all we can to maintain a strict budget, but costs are steep and resources few. At approximately $3000 per person plus equipment costs, it is a stretch for the department and for many students. We are still in need of silent auction donations for the March 5th event, and limited sponsorships are available. Likewise, if you are interested in becoming more involved with the program or supporting it in a more impactful way, we invite you to contact Dr. David Winship Taylor, current trip leader, at dwtaylo2@ius.edu or 812-941-2377 for more information.

“Studying ecology in the field is so much different than hearing about it. You are actually see it and applying what you learned in the classroom”
